

Online education: features and problems you may encounter

The twenty-first century can rightly be considered the century of technological progress. Everything develops so quickly that the device's 10-year-old seems to be something alien, a stranger. Although it's not so much of the time by the standards of evolution. Very important for humanity innovation was distance learning, which is carried out via the Internet. As a rule, such education is not free and not everyone can afford to study in online school.

Most often online-the school taught a specific industry, for example, web programming or design, so positioned as supplementary education.

Training the network can be divided into two ways:

- Online video calls with the teacher. Thus, is actually the most common dialogue between people, with the only difference that people can be hundreds of kilometers from each other.
- Monthly or annual packages with different services, such as SMS classes, individual homework assignments, webinars (seminars held online in real time), etc.

As noted by many teachers and students, the most important thing in remote education – desire to learn and learn something new. A huge role is played also by self-education, as in fact they have to deal with. After all, the teacher only provides an information Foundation and the student continues to learn the rest, and opens up new frontiers of knowledge.

Online education has appeared recently, so haven't formed a General opinion as to how such education is necessary.

We can note some of the advantages and disadvantages of distance education.

The benefits include:

1. The opportunity to gain knowledge invalids and bedridden people.
2. The maximum attention of the teacher for the individual.
3. The choice by man required schools and teachers.
4. The use of modern learning technologies.
5. The availability of educational materials and manuals.

The disadvantages of the same:

1. The lack of "live" communication between teacher and student.
2. The need for constant access to the Internet.
3. The presence pay for an essay online of rigid discipline.
4. When applying for a job can cause problems with the diploma, as not all employers recognize it.

Thus, distance education is mainly of a positive nature. Without him, people eager to gain practical knowledge in an unusual area, it would be much harder to satisfy their need. It gives additional knowledge in a particular area, which can be useful in the future. This training allows to learn the disabled, bedridden people and just those who want to know a little more.
